

Women Vision Hylan Defeat in Mothers' Vote

Lamentable Plight of City Schools Chief Indictment of Tammany's Misrule, Feminine Leaders Believe Power Is in Their Hands

Children's Future Is Stake for Which They Fight at Polls, Miss Boswell Says

Miss Helen Varick Boswell, coalition candidate for county Register, Republican women leaders in the coalition campaign joined the chorus of New York mothers yesterday in denunciation of public school administration under the Hylan regime. Miss Boswell said in a public statement that mothers were more than justified in their condemnation of conditions in the schools, which were deteriorating daily under the system of neglect.

"Conditions are causing despair among parents of foreign birth who brought their children to the United States for educational advantages," said Miss Boswell. "Our laws are adequate, and they provide for proper education of the children, but the laws are not properly administered, and the result is that foreign-born parents are disillusioned with regard to our supposed educational advantages."

"The figures are sufficiently illuminating. There are 281,121 persons ten years old and above in New York City who are unable to read and write English or any other language. Of that number 270,778 are foreign born. This means that the percentage of illiteracy in a total population ten years old and above is 62.000 children in the public schools of New York being taught in crowded and over-sized classes. These figures are outside the 122,105 children on part-time education for the day schools."

"Next Tuesday the electorate of New York City is to make a choice, not alone of candidates, but of whether representative government shall endure or fall here. We are not asking that we will permit the Boss in Fourteenth Street to control or whether he shall be deposed."

"This election is being watched not only all over the United States, but being watched all over the world, because the great folk of other countries have come to our gates more often in the last few years than previously did, and it interests them to know whether we shall place at the head of our city administration a man who is worthy to be there. Let every woman who votes here in this mind next Tuesday."

Mrs. Mary Hatch Willard, president of the Republican Committee of One Hundred, said she found it impossible to believe that the mothers of New York will neglect their opportunity to clean up the schools and to drive Tammany from their control.

"It seems to me," said Mrs. Hatch, "that we owe a special responsibility to those mothers who are devoting their lives to the education of their children. It should be the task of the administration to lift the heavy burden that is being placed on the homes of hundreds of thousands. Instead of this, the policy of the Hylan administration is to make mothers of school children adapt themselves to the Hylan scheme of things."

"If the mothers understand how this great wrong has been brought about, and I hope they do understand it, let us also hope they will realize their power to make an end of Tammany and use that power."

Mrs. James G. Wentz, president of the Women's Republican Club, said she believed the women of New York were thoroughly aroused to the evils of the present municipal government and that they would rally to the support of Mr. Curran for Mayor. She added:

"The most vital necessity in citizenship is education—mental and moral development. I say the women of New York will insist that these rights of the children shall be preserved."

Mrs. James Russell Parsons, president of the Republican Committee of One Hundred, said she found it impossible to believe that the mothers of New York will neglect their opportunity to clean up the schools and to drive Tammany from their control.

"It seems to me," said Mrs. Hatch, "that we owe a special responsibility to those mothers who are devoting their lives to the education of their children. It should be the task of the administration to lift the heavy burden that is being placed on the homes of hundreds of thousands. Instead of this, the policy of the Hylan administration is to make mothers of school children adapt themselves to the Hylan scheme of things."

"If the mothers understand how this great wrong has been brought about, and I hope they do understand it, let us also hope they will realize their power to make an end of Tammany and use that power."

"A Seat for Every Child"

How Mayor Hylan Has Failed in His Campaign Promise for the Public Schools of the City

Public Schools 25 and 6, Brooklyn

Public School 25, of Brooklyn, situated on Lafayette Avenue near Summer Avenue, is one of the schools visited last spring by the Committee of Plan and Program, comprised of representatives of twelve women's clubs. Their subsequent report had this to say of Public School 25:

"Built forty-five years ago, this school serves 3,000 children and is overcrowded, because one of its buildings was damaged by fire last year. The rooms are dark and overcrowded, the stairways are dangerous, and there is practically no play space inside or out. There are no decent accommodations for the teachers."

As a result of the failure of Mayor Hylan to keep his campaign promises the conditions in this old school are worse this year. At the present time there are 3,164 children receiving instruction in the dark rooms. To solve the problem caused by distressing congestion the educational authorities have been compelled to resort to the usual scheme of double sessions and part time. The official statistics of the Board of Education show that in this old school there are 828 children on the double sessions and 456 on strict part-time instruction. There also are 107 children in the kindergarten.

dent of the Republican Neighborhood Association, 110 East Sixtieth Street, and chairman of the Lockwood campaign committee, said the main source of her interest in the campaign had been her knowledge of Henry H. Curran and Senator Lockwood, especially in so far as related to their attitude toward schools. "I know that Mr. Curran and Senator Lockwood stand for better schools," said Mrs. Parsons. "They will, I believe, give New York what it has every right to possess—the finest school system in the world. With Mr. Curran, Senator Lockwood, Mr. Gilroy and Mr. Elliott on the Board of Estimate we may be assured that the best interests of the school children will be safeguarded."

Miss Mary Wood, in charge of the women's division at coalition headquarters, said that while city departmental wrangling over budgets school children were playing in the streets, dodging motor trucks or standing in hallways waiting their turns for class.

"Reliable estimates," said Miss Wood, "give part-time scholars of four times the number there were in the first year of the Hylan administration. If the polls in view of the way their children are being treated I shall be most woefully surprised."

Miss Rosemary Whitney, member of the Industrial Commission, Mrs. Edward S. Van Zile, chairman of the Women's Co-operative Anti-Tammany Committee; Mrs. William Vanamee, widely known Republican speaker; Mrs. Francis Pollock, Mrs. Martin Booth Kelly, Miss Anne Doughty, Miss Mary Frances, Mrs. Arthur H. Hanford, Mrs. Cecilia Farwell, Mrs. Rheta Childs Dorr, Mrs. May Gooderson, Mrs. Elton Huntington, Hooker, Miss Harriet Brent and Mrs. Malcolm Goodrich, all expressed confidence in the outcome of the election as a triumph for the Republican candidates.

Wife Traps Alleged Slayer

George C. Poeppel, who was known under the alias of John H. Walters and who lived at 108 Vroom Street, Jersey City, was arrested yesterday on a charge of homicide. According to the Jersey City police, he confessed to the killing of Detective James Dinley, of the Oakland Avenue station, who was shot in front of the Vroom Street house on Saturday night. Dinley had been sent to arrest Poeppel on a charge of passing a worthless check. Poeppel said he pulled a revolver from his pocket and that it went off in the struggle which followed.

Poeppel's arrest was brought about by his seventeen-year-old wife, who, knowing that he was wanted on a charge of homicide, told detectives that her husband was at the home of an uncle at 313 Van Winkle Avenue.

"Of course in many cases she doesn't have all the care of properly rearing the children, but more often she does than doesn't, or at least so much of it that it seems like all," said Mrs. Quack. "Most of the time I kept them hidden in the reeds and grass growing in the water. There they were safe from Hawks by day and Owls by night. But I wasn't long before they began to sester a little and venture outside the reeds and grass to swim in the open water."

"One day I led them across the pond to the other side. At first they followed close to me, for it was a great adventure to them. Then one began to drop behind. He was venturesome. I waited for him and scolded him and—well, the next time I looked around he was gone."

"Where had he gone?" asked Peter after a pause. "A Muskrat had followed us under water and had seized him from underneath," sobbed Mrs. Quack. "It was a danger I couldn't see."

"Did—the same thing happen to the other one you lost?" asked Peter. Mrs. Quack nodded. "Yes," said she, "only it was a Mink this time. They were very little, those babies, or it wouldn't have happened. Bringing up a family on the water is a great care, Peter Rabbit, a great care. But it is worth all it costs."

She added, glancing with pride at the six handsome young Ducks playing out in the middle of the pond. Again Peter nodded. (Copyright, 1921, by T. W. Burgess)

The next story—"Blacky the Crow Makes a Call."

Mothers Ready To Right School Wrongs at Polls

Aroused by Hylan's Neglect of Children's Welfare, They Will Register Protest With the Ballot

Perils Disturb Parents

Daily Exposure of Pupils to Fire Hazards Assailed; Mayor Held Foe of Poor

The large number of protests which The Tribune has received against the unsanitary conditions existing in the public schools, the direct result of the Hylan administration, shows clearly that the mothers of the city have been aroused to the great wrong which has been done, and the duty of voters to right this wrong at the polls to-morrow. Two of the comments made by mothers yesterday said that unless this is done, it may become necessary to send children outside of New York City if they are to obtain a fair public school education. One mother said she had already done this.

Mrs. Margaret Cartwright, 259 West Twelfth Street, said: "I am now in my spair months ago, and sent my little girl to the county—to a little country village—where I know that she will get far better schooling than she will in the crowded schools here. I could not afford to send her to a private school, and, besides, I wanted her in a public school, and hard as it is to have her away, I know that she is better off with my sister, going to school on regular hours and living a quiet, normal life, than she would be here in the hurry and rush of part time or double session. I have been a teacher, and I know the effect this has on children."

Poor Are Made to Suffer "The total result is that it is forcing the parents who can afford to do so to send their children to private schools and leaving in the public schools only those who are too poor to do anything else. It is the poor who suffer from the administration that pretends to be the friend of the poor. The irony of it! And it isn't alone in schools—look at the milk situation, the coal prices, rents—everything the poor people of this city never had a worse friend than this present administration has been."

"But I find that mothers are beginning to realize these things, and if we are beaten this time then we ought to begin at once a program of education of the mothers of this great city; for once let the true state of affairs be made plain to them, the result is sure. Tammany, Heart and Hylan will go!"

Upsets School and Home Life Mrs. Sadie Bursin, 111 East Eighteenth Street, said: "Part time is bad for any child. There is always a tension—the feeling that one must do all the part time work of the full time session—and so teacher and pupils are under a strain, and the home gets the reaction. You can't upset school life without upsetting the home life too, and the mothers of this city will some day awaken to the realization as to who is to blame for all of this trouble and worry."

"Of course, we need new schools—everybody knows that, and has known it a long time. And we need the schools that we have made fit places for children to be in. It is a dreadful thing for mothers to think—that the hundreds of thousands of the children of this city are daily exposed to fire dangers—what if a fire were to break out in one of these overcrowded schools, where they have the wooden, inclosed stairways—it makes a mother's heart almost stop beating to think of it!"

Irregularity Harms Children Mrs. Meltz, 155 Barrett Street, Brooklyn, said: "Children get wrong ideas of what school means from all of this irregularity, and the unsanitary conditions, to which they are just as sensitive as are older people, though they may not always realize the danger of them. What ever happens this week, the mothers of the city must make themselves to school conditions and demand from whoever is in control that the wrong done to the children by this administration be righted. Mothers who understand now will know how to vote Tuesday—against the whole Heart-Tammany-Hylan crew."

No State Income Tax Change

Special Dispatch to The Tribune ALBANY, Nov. 6.—In a statement issued tonight by the State Tax Commission, in this state, under the provisions of the state income tax law are making deductions from the incomes on earnings of non-resident employees in the state, that the action pending by Congress to raise the exemption allowed in making returns under the Federal personal tax law will have no immediate effect on present exemptions allowed under the state income tax law.

"It is especially important," says the statement, "for employers of non-residents to bear in mind at this time that there will be no changes in exemptions or other features of the state law for the rest of the year, no matter what action Congress may take with regard to the Federal law. Many employers in the state, especially in New York City, are now preparing to withhold from the pay of non-resident employees the amount of tax required under the law for the present year on the exemption basis of $1,000 for single persons and $2,000 for married persons or heads of families."

DERUTA The Pottery in the Italian Hills sends AU QUATRIEME old designs in New Majolica

Some of the designs are things which have been repeated since the beginning of the establishment of the pottery in the fifteenth century.

Plates of four sizes, all manner of odd pieces and tea and after-dinner coffee sets in the delightful old Deruta designs over their cream surfaces. In a beautiful shade of old blue or in blue with buff—a charming combination.

The designs are bands and elaborately worked-out figures, nearly covering the ground-work. An amusing thing about them is that their central theme is usually the animal, the sort of deer, turtle-doves, rabbits, other wild creatures.

The designs are so similarly laid out that one might have a set of bread-and-butter plates with the turtle-doves, soup-plates with the rabbit, dinner-plates with the spotted deer and luncheon or tea-plates with a still different animal, all harmonizing delightfully.

Tea-sets, three pieces, $12. After-dinner coffee sets, three pieces, $8. Service plates, $36 a dozen. Dinner plates, $30 a dozen. Bread-and-butter plates, $24 a dozen. Soup plates, $30 a dozen. Bowls, bon-bon or other dishes, pitchers and many other service pieces in charming shapes, from $1.50 to $7.50.

Deruta Candlesticks Plain colored, aquamarine blue, turquoise and violet—with twisted stems—$4 each. Fourth floor, Old Building.

The John Wanamaker Store

Formerly A. T. Stewart & Co.

Telephone 4700

Stuyvesant

We Are Greatly Enjoying Our Business

For the first time in the history of American literature

Literary Week entertainments to be held in the Auditorium, beginning today, conducted by JOHN FARRAR, Editor "Bookman"

Literature will be studied from every possible angle, and explained in every possible form. Apart from the appearance of many well-known writers, there will be some special feature of an unusual nature each day, as, for instance, on Thursday, when Rita Weiman will give a talk on one of her films which will be projected by the Famous Players-Lasky, and when the Provincetown Players produce Susan Glaspell's "Trifles."

The whole week should be of interest to student bodies, and representatives of women's clubs.

Today's Program

HEYWOOD BROWN will discuss Ten Books of the Fall

BEATRICE KAUFMAN and O. K. LEVERIGHT will give a burlesque on "Dangerous Ages"

These authors, also, will speak—

HENRY AIKMAN FANNIE HURST MARY AUSTIN OWEN JOHNSON ALEXANDER BLACK NINA WILCOX PUTNAM BLANCHE COLTON WILLIAMS

All book-lovers, of course, are cordially invited. But we particularly invite those who don't care for books or reading.

First Gallery, New Building. Fur Salon, Second floor, Old Building.

The Annual Election Sale of Men's Clothing Begins TODAY

Plates of four sizes, all manner of odd pieces and tea and after-dinner coffee sets in the delightful old Deruta designs over their cream surfaces. In a beautiful shade of old blue or in blue with buff—a charming combination.

The designs are bands and elaborately worked-out figures, nearly covering the ground-work. An amusing thing about them is that their central theme is usually the animal, the sort of deer, turtle-doves, rabbits, other wild creatures.

The designs are so similarly laid out that one might have a set of bread-and-butter plates with the turtle-doves, soup-plates with the rabbit, dinner-plates with the spotted deer and luncheon or tea-plates with a still different animal, all harmonizing delightfully.

Tea-sets, three pieces, $12. After-dinner coffee sets, three pieces, $8. Service plates, $36 a dozen. Dinner plates, $30 a dozen. Bread-and-butter plates, $24 a dozen. Soup plates, $30 a dozen. Bowls, bon-bon or other dishes, pitchers and many other service pieces in charming shapes, from $1.50 to $7.50.

Plain colored, aquamarine blue, turquoise and violet—with twisted stems—$4 each. Fourth floor, Old Building.

Men are voting for lower prices this year—and here are the lower prices

300 Suits—$50, $55, $60 and $65 grades $36.50

300 Fine Ulsters—$50 $55 and $60 grades . . . $38.50

All plaid backs. Richly blended colorings. Dress ulsters, town ulsters, storm ulsters—with half belts, and large pockets. Sleeves and yokes lined with satin. Plenty of browns, grays and heathers.

Only the better grades of clothing—Wanamaker standard clothing in every detail of fabric, fit and finish.

Election Sale of Men's Shoes, $7.85

All new. Values which top the ticket.

We happened on them just in the nick of time for our election sale for men. A manufacturer had overstocked and wanted quick cash—we got the lot and you will agree that there could hardly be a better election day shoe offer.

They're of Norwegian leather, in tan and black, with extra wide shanks and heels, and the very newest of heavy punching and heavy stitching all around heel and soles. The high shoes have saddle instep with heavy punching.

Young men and college men particularly will appreciate these. The damp-proof fibre slip sole, the squarish wide English soles, and the general heavy effect is what is most in demand right now.

All sizes and a quantity to assure good choice.

Fourth Gallery, Just in Front of the Bridge of Progress, New Building. Burlington Arcade floor, New Building.

Bedtime Stories

Bringing Up a Family

By Thornton W. Burgess

It never seems to me quite fair A mother should have all the care. —Mrs. Quack.

Of course in many cases she doesn't have all the care of properly rearing the children, but more often she does than doesn't, or at least so much of it that it seems like all," said Mrs. Quack. "Most of the time I kept them hidden in the reeds and grass growing in the water. There they were safe from Hawks by day and Owls by night. But I wasn't long before they began to sester a little and venture outside the reeds and grass to swim in the open water."

"One day I led them across the pond to the other side. At first they followed close to me, for it was a great adventure to them. Then one began to drop behind. He was venturesome. I waited for him and scolded him and—well, the next time I looked around he was gone."

"Where had he gone?" asked Peter after a pause. "A Muskrat had followed us under water and had seized him from underneath," sobbed Mrs. Quack. "It was a danger I couldn't see."

"Did—the same thing happen to the other one you lost?" asked Peter. Mrs. Quack nodded. "Yes," said she, "only it was a Mink this time. They were very little, those babies, or it wouldn't have happened. Bringing up a family on the water is a great care, Peter Rabbit, a great care. But it is worth all it costs."

She added, glancing with pride at the six handsome young Ducks playing out in the middle of the pond. Again Peter nodded. (Copyright, 1921, by T. W. Burgess)

The next story—"Blacky the Crow Makes a Call."

Their Quality has wiped out price distinction in cigarettes

BEACON CIGARETTES

You can't help but like them!

20 for 15¢

Loillard & Co.